

JOSEPH A. GRAZIER
... New Amstan President

Grazier Elected Amstan President, Succeeds Mueller

Joseph A. Grazier was elected president of American Radiator and Standard Sanitary Corp., succeeding Theodore E. Mueller, who was elected, chairman of the board of directors, it was announced this week.

Grazier has been serving as president since June, and before that was executive vice-president. He is also a director and member of the executive committee of the corporation.

The new 50-year-old president began his association with American-Standard in 1937 as a staff member in the office of the secretary. He became assistant secretary in 1939 and secretary eight years later. In 1951 he was elected vice-president and secretary, and a year later became executive vice-president.

A graduate of Lafayette College and the Law School of the University of Pennsylvania, Grazier began his career in 1928 with the law firm of Sullivan and Cromwell, and served with that firm until joining American-Standard in 1937. He is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and the Council on Foreign Relations.

Mueller had served as president of the corporation since 1946. He began his association with American-Standard in 1904 as a pattern maker's apprentice, and rose to successively higher positions in the manufacturing field. He was vice-president, general manager of manufacturing prior to his election as president.

SNAPPER

What a way to "urn" a living and how's that for pure corn? The boss said the guy down where he drinks coffee once in awhile is never surprised at anything, but he bet I could change that. I did but I bet I won't be drinking any coffee for awhile, I used to like the stuff too.

If you don't have a light meter, we're selling you more film than we should, because you're spilling lots of it. You don't list a light meter as an expense—it's an investment. We got some swell ones from $15.75 to $32.50.
